

Contents

	Contributors	ix
	Acknowledgments	xi
Chapter 1	Group Opinion and the Study of Representation Peter K. Enns and Christopher Wlezien	1
PART I	GROUP OPINIONS	27
	Part I: Introduction Peter K. Enns and Christopher Wlezien
Chapter 2	Assessing the Ethnic and Racial Diversity of American Public Opinion Marisa Abrajano and Keith T. Poole	32
Chapter 3	United We Divide? Education, Income, and Heterogeneity in Mass Partisan Polarization Christopher Ellis and Joseph Daniel Ura	61
Chapter 4	The Political Geography of Party Resurgence David A. Hopkins and Laura Stoker	93
Chapter 5	Get Government Out of It: Heterogeneity of Government Skepticism and Its Connection to Economic Interests and Policy Preferences Katherine Cramer Walsh	129
PART II	POLICY REPRESENTATION	161
	Part II: Introduction Peter K. Enns and Christopher Wlezien

Chapter 6	Segmented Representation: The Reagan White House and Disproportionate Responsiveness James N. Druckman and Lawrence R. Jacobs	166
Chapter 7	Whose Statehouse Democracy? Policy Responsiveness to Poor Versus Rich Constituents in Poor Versus Rich States Elizabeth Rigby and Gerald C. Wright	189
Chapter 8	How Poorly Are the Poor Represented in the U.S. Senate? Yosef Bhatti and Robert S. Erikson	223
Chapter 9	Policy Consequences of Representational Inequality Martin Gilens	247
Chapter 10	Inequality in Policy Responsiveness? Christopher Wlezien and Stuart N. Soroka	285
Chapter 11	Who Do Parties Represent? Wesley Hussey and John Zaller	311
PART III	ON INEQUALITY IN POLITICAL REPRESENTATION	345
Chapter 12	The Issues in Representation James A. Stimson	347
Epilogue	Final Thoughts on Who Gets Represented Peter K. Enns and Christopher Wlezien	361
Index		363