

About the Authors

Steven Brint is professor of sociology at the University of California, Riverside, director of the Colleges & Universities 2000 study, and associate dean of the College of Humanities, Arts, and Social Sciences.

Jean Reith Schroedel is dean of the School of Politics and Economics at Claremont Graduate University.

Seth Abrutyn is graduate student at the University of California, Riverside.

Wayne Baker is professor of management and organizations and professor of sociology at the University of Michigan. He is also faculty associate at the Institute for Social Research and holds the Jack D. Sparks Whirlpool Corporation Research Professorship.

Connie J. Boudens is professor of psychology at Trent University in Peterborough, Ontario, Canada.

Kimberly H. Conger is assistant professor in the political science department at Iowa State University.

Andrew Greeley is professor of sociology at the University of Arizona and research associate with the National Opinion Research Center (NORC) at the University of Chicago.

Peter Dobkin Hall is senior research fellow at the Hauser Center for Nonprofit Organizations at Harvard University.

Michael Hout is professor of sociology and demography at the University of California, Berkeley.

Julie Ingersoll is associate professor of religious studies at the University of North Florida.

Nathaniel Klemp is assistant professor of political science at Pepperdine University.

D. Michael Lindsay is assistant professor of sociology and associate director of the Center on Race, Religion and Urban Life at Rice University. He is also Rice Scholar at the James A. Baker III Institute for Public Policy.

Stephen Macedo is Laurance S. Rockefeller Professor of Politics at the University Center for Human Values at Princeton University.

Pippa Norris is McGuire Lecturer in Comparative Politics at the John F. Kennedy School of Government at Harvard University.

Clyde Wilcox is professor in the Government Department at Georgetown University.

Rhys H. Williams is professor and chair of sociology, and director of the McNamara Center for the Social Study of Religion, at Loyola University, Chicago.