This pamphlet aims to place in the hands of public spirited people a condensed list of what has been written about recreation. There is no attempt to make this an exhaustive list. Only the best of the up-to-date books, pamphlets and magazine articles dealing directly with recreation in its many phases have been included. We shall be glad to hear of other publications for future mention.

The arrangement is by subjects, with annotations on the more formal publications, many of which deal with other phases of recreation than the subject under which they are listed. A book is listed but once. Further reference is made to it by number under the other subjects with which the book also deals. For this purpose a number has been given to each reference.

The local public library will doubtless already have many of the books, pamphlets and magazines listed. Where funds are available, the library authorities are usually glad to add new material for which there is an evident demand.
