

Contents

	Contributors	vii
Chapter 1	Intersections Between Historical and Rational Choice Institutionalism Ira Katznelson and Barry R. Weingast	1
PART I	SITUATIONS
Chapter 2	A Cross of Gold, a Crown of Thorns: Preferences and Decisions in the 1896 Democratic National Convention Richard Bense	27
Chapter 3	Congress and Civil Rights Policy: An Examination of Endogenous Preferences David W. Brady, John A. Ferejohn, and Jeremy C. Pope	62
Chapter 4	“To Give Counsel and to Consent”: Why the King (Edward I) Expelled His Jews (in 1290) Ira Katznelson	88

vi Contents

PART II PROCESSES

Chapter 5 Preference Formation as a Political Process:
The Case of Monetary Union in Europe 129
Peter A. Hall

Chapter 6 Persuasion, Preference Change, and Critical
Junctures: The Microfoundations of a
Macroscopic Concept 161
Barry R. Weingast

Chapter 7 Endogenous Preferences About Courts:
A Theory of Judicial State Building in the Nineteenth Century 185
Charles M. Cameron

PART III CATEGORIES

Chapter 8 Inducing Preferences Within Organizations:
The Case of Unions 219
Margaret Levi

Chapter 9 Preference Formation in Transitional Justice 247
Jon Elster

Chapter 10 What the Politics of Enfranchisement Can Tell Us About How Rational Choice Theorists
Study Institutions 279
James Johnson

PART IV SYNTHESIS

Chapter 11 Combining Institutionalisms: Liberal Choices and Political Trajectories in Central America 313
James Mahoney

Index 335