Table of Contents

Editor's Foreword

Conference Participants

SESSION ONE. Public and Mass Media Uses of the Behavioral Sciences

1. Marvin Bressler
   The Potential Public Uses of the Behavior Sciences | 3

2. Richard C. Wald
   Newspaper Journalism and the Behavioral Sciences | 28

   A Review of Session One | 45

SESSION TWO. Social Issues and the Mass Media

4. Robin M. Williams, Jr.
   Implications for the Mass Media of Research on Intergroup Relations and Race | 57

5. Melvin L. Kohn
   Social Class and Serious Mental Disorder | 77

6. Alfred J. Kahn
   Poverty and Public Policy | 93

7. Eli Ginzberg
   Automation—Impact of Computers | 124

8. Stanton Wheeler
   Crime and Violence | 131
Table of Contents

Session Three. Journalists and Behavioral Scientists

9. Leo Bogart
   Social Sciences in the Mass Media  | 153

10. Ernest Havemann
    Barriers to Communication: The Problem of Jargon  | 175

11. Emmett Dedmon
    Barriers to Communication: Another Journalist's View  | 184

12. Ronald Lippitt
    Barriers to Communication: As Seen by a Social Psychologist  | 189

13. Edgar F. Borgatta
    Barriers to Communication: As Seen by a Sociologist  | 196

14. John Mack Carter
    Perceptions of a Mass Audience  | 202

15. Joseph T. Klapper, Herbert H. Hyman
    A Review of Session Three  | 206

Session Four. Prospects: Training of Journalists in the Behavioral Sciences

16. W. Phillips Davison
    The Russell Sage—Columbia Program in Journalism and the Behavioral Sciences  | 219

17. Wayne A. Danielson
    Techniques for Improving Access to Social Science Data and Resources  | 229

18. Earl Ubell
    Should There Be a Behavioral Science Beat?  | 234

19. Robert L. Jones
    A Review of Session Four  | 242

Session Five. Summary and Conclusions

20. Daniel Lerner
    Summary and Conclusions  | 249

Index  | 261